RELIGIOUS THEMES IN ART AND SOCIAL JUSTICE 1 semester each

Students will grow in their appreciation of their own spiritual experiences and, above all, will understand themselves as creators. Topics and media include religious symbols, social justice themes, religious leaders, historical leaders, and the computer. The artists of the Renaissance, a field trip as part of a church architecture unit, and the building of a cross complete the semester.

Students are also registered in Social Justice.

The Social Justice seminar uses the maturity of seniors to discuss issues chosen by the students and led by them. The list of possible issues is a long one, but the course certainly covers abortion, capital punishment, euthanasia, discrimination, poverty, religious freedom, and the other moral and ethical issues of our time that the Pope has highlighted as being critical in today's society. Using Catholic social teachings and the Catechism of the Catholic Church, students study the principles that define and clarify the Church's position on these issues in order to illuminate their thought processes.
