This past weekend, Saint Thomas Academy students departed for Guatemala and Uganda, where they will contribute to building and infrastructure projects in impoverished communities. This is the 17th year the Academy has sent teams to San Lucas Toliman, Guatemala, to assist a Catholic mission with land acquisition, housing, health care and education. For the first time, a team of 15 students from the Academy will join forces with University of St. Thomas students to build a chicken coop at a Kampala, Ugandan orphanage. This will enable the orphans to have a steady supply of eggs from which to make the biscuits they sell to pay for their schooling. If you're interested in following students from your area and the teams' experiences, visit www.cadets.com <<http://www.cadets.com>> . Listed below are the students on the teams and their hometowns. If you'd like to interview students upon their return, please contact me.
